

Nicomachean Ethics

Book XI

Hans Ubana

Jhon Paul Romero

My friendship circle

Strangers

People that are paid to help me

People I see regularly

My friends and some relatives

My family

Book XI

- They are some kind of friendships that equalizes the parties and preserves for example in the political form of friendship the shoemaker gets a return for his shoes to show his worth (Expecting for a Return)
- Friendships of lovers are sometimes the lover complains that his excess of love is not met by love in return perhaps there is nothing lovable about him (Fake Love)
- Friendships that just uses you because of your worth you have a value on your head that uses that advantage (User)

The background is a vibrant pink with a pattern of lighter pink circles. At the top, there are several cartoon characters: a yellow one with large eyes, a blue one with a red mouth, and a green one with a red mouth. A large, faint, light blue face with a wide smile is visible in the background, behind the text box.

Book XI

- Friendships that you always with on everyday when you are on your up they are with you always supporting you but when you are on a crisis where you actually need them the most they are not there (Ghost)
- Friendships that you hang on with everyday and became best of the best friendships but actually has a crush on you and scared to have a conversation on telling what is his/her feelings for you (Torpe)

Book XI

- Friendships that actually just uses you because he/she likes your boyfriend/girlfriend to make flirt with (Snake)
- Friendships that just uses you because you are rich and generous they are using that advantage to steal and make you treat them (Buraot)
- Friendships that are socially active who uses there social media platforms actively posting every detail in their life ( Social Media Addicts)
- Friendships that usually you meet in online games and very skillful in Games (Gamer)

Book XI

- Friendships that uses dating apps and likes to meeting with strangers to flirt with even when they have a Girlfriend/Boyfriend (Cheater)

Book XI Summary

- In friendships or exchanges where each person receives a different benefit, it is important that both parties feel they are being justly treated.
- The feelings we have for our friends are the same as we have for ourselves. For instance, enjoys that friend's company, and shares personal joys and sorrows. This can also be said of our relationship with ourselves, even in the case of bad people, who treat both themselves and their friends poorly.
- Those who denigrate self-love are thinking of people who seek the greatest honors and pleasures only for themselves. A good person who is self-loving will seek only what is best for himself or herself, which will be consistent with what is best for all. A good person will do seemingly unselfish acts,

A cartoon illustration on the left side of the slide. It features a blue dog with large ears and a black outline, looking towards the right. Below it is a green dog with a large red mouth and a black outline, also looking towards the right. The background is pink with white polka dots. There are some small orange and yellow shapes at the top left.

Book XI Summary

- Friendship is one of the greatest goods in life, so a good person cannot achieve perfect happiness without friends.
- Obviously, it is better to have many friends, but there is a limit to how many intimate friendships one can sustain, and it is preferable to have a few close friendships than many superficial friendships.